

Do you want to help improve care and support for people with memory problems and dementia?

At the University of Nottingham we work together with people with dementia and family members on our research to improve dementia care and support.

People with dementia and family members help us come up with new research questions, design flyers, and advertise new research projects, amongst many other things.

Come and join our 'drop-in'
session and learn how you can get involved in research!

Free light refreshments
available

What to expect from the drop-in session?

- Have a chat with University of Nottingham dementia researchers Neil, Orie and Esther
- Learn from the experiences of our current public involvement members;
- Option to stay informed about opportunities to get involved in research.
